Georgetown Houses To Be Open Nov. 19

The biennial Preview of Thanksgiving in Georgetown on November 19, sponsored by the Georgetown Garden Club, will open eight of the most distinguished residences in the area east of Wisconsin Avenue.

Between one and five o'clock that afternoon the eight houses will be decorated with flower arrangements suitable to each architectural period, and in each dining room there will be a centerpiece and table-settings for a different course of a traditional Thanksgiving dinner. In addition to seeing the special table-settings, visitors will be invited to tea in the "Orangerie" of famed Dumbarton Oaks.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Gray will open their house—which is actually three very old houses skilfully incorporated into one; the handsome brick townhouse of Justice and Mrs. Harlan will welcome visitors; and "Linthicum House" (circa 1805) will be shown by its present owners, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Warder Thoron. The two-story Federal house now belonging to Miss Rose Greely, the well-known landscape gardener, will be on view and so will the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Hunt, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Magnuson and the Director of the National Gallery of Art and Mrs. John Walker III.

Proceeds from the Tour will go into the Georgetown Garden Club's fund to landscape the entrance-way and recreation area of the Boy's Club of Washington, Jelleff Branch. Mrs. Neill Phillips is President of the Club, and Mrs. Thomas A. Parrott is Chairman of the Preview Committee. Tickets are $3.50, including tea in the "Orangerie." Tickets in advance may be obtained by writing to Mrs. Julian Schley, 2815 Dumbarton Avenue, N.W., Washington 7, D.C.
